

Call 311 to make an appointment at a Financial Empowerment Center near you.
 For more information, visit nyc.gov and search "Financial Empowerment Centers."

Financial Empowerment Center
Free One-on-One Financial Counseling

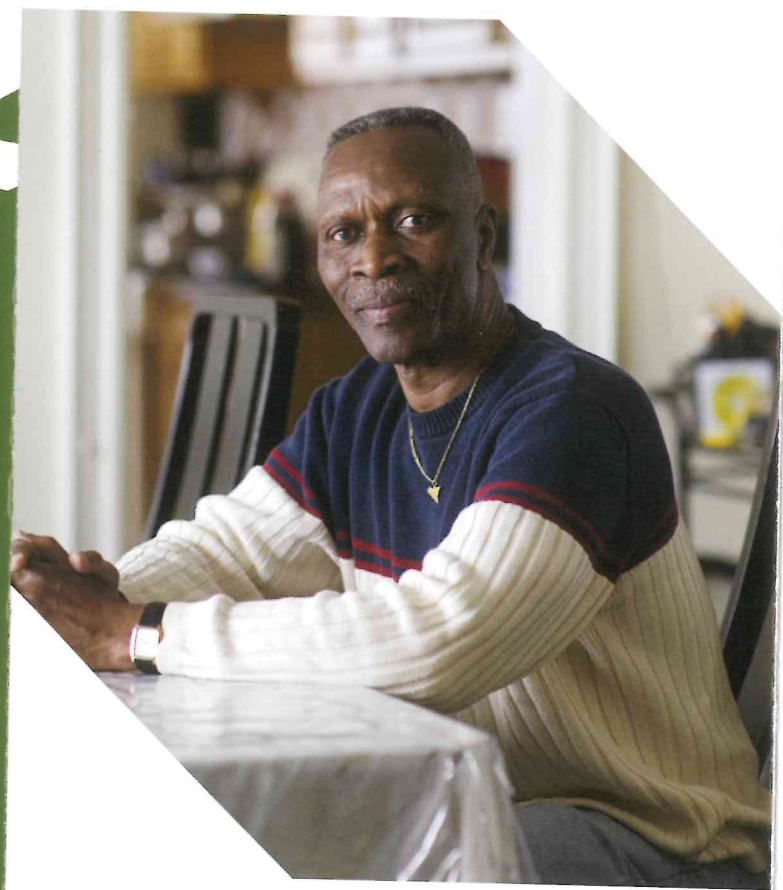

Financial Empowerment Centers are run by the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs Office of Financial Empowerment in partnership with Bedford Stuyvesant Restoration Corporation, East River Development Alliance, The Financial Clinic, Neighborhood Trust Financial Partners, and Phipps Community Development Corporation.

NYC Department of Consumer Affairs
 Office of Financial Empowerment
 Jonathan Mintz
 Commissioner
 Printed on 30% post consumer recycled paper

New Yorkers We Have Helped

“I saw an ad on TV to ‘get out of debt.’ I paid the company over $6,000, but they did nothing. And because they told me not to pay my creditors, I got sued. I went to a free Financial Empowerment Center. They told me I had been ripped off and they would help. All New Yorkers should know there’s free help with debt. **”

– Joseph, Brooklyn

Have you seen offers from companies promising to “fix” your debt? We can help